A Message From Our Founder

People come with their own shapes, colors, backgrounds and beliefs.

Discrimination happens when someone is treated differently because of how they look, how they act, or what they believe. The world is not free from discrimination. Compassion and empathy is lacking in today's world. When something this basic is in short supply, it becomes extremely valuable.

In this lesson, we will explore the topic of discrimination and identify behaviors that challenge it.

Crisis lines are always available at TextPledge.us

Happy Learning!

Affirmative Action for All

Have ever heard the term affirmative action? Did you know affirmative action exists in your schools? Continue reading to discover some of the affirmative action opportunities available to students.

Extra Help in School:

Imagine a student who has difficulty understanding certain subjects because they didn't have access to good teachers or resources in their previous school. Perhaps they have a learning disability. Affirmative action might mean that this student gets extra tutoring or help from teachers to catch up with their classmates.

Special Programs:

Some schools have programs specifically designed to help students from disadvantaged backgrounds. These programs might offer extra classes, workshops, or resources to support these students academically and socially. For example, many schools offer a free lunch program so students are nourished throughout the school day.

Scholarships and Grants:

Affirmative action can also mean providing scholarships or grants to students who come from low-income families or underrepresented backgrounds. This helps them afford college and pursue their dreams despite financial obstacles.

Equal Opportunities in Sports:

In sports teams, affirmative action could mean ensuring that everyone has a fair chance to participate, regardless of their background. This might involve providing sporting equipment, extra training, opportunities for students who haven't had as much access to sports programs.

Accessible Facilities:

Making sure that public places like schools, parks, and buildings are accessible to everyone, including people with disabilities, is another form of affirmative action. This ensures that everyone can participate fully in their community.

Matthew Shepard - October 6, 1998 - Laramie, Wyoming: Matthew Shepard, a gay college student, was brutally beaten, tied to a fence, and left to die in a hate-motivated attack. He succumbed to his injuries six days later. His death sparked national outrage and led to renewed efforts to combat anti-LGBTQ violence.

Larry King - February 12, 2008 - Oxnard, California: Larry King, a 15-year-old gay student, was shot and killed by a classmate in a school classroom. The murder was reportedly motivated by King's sexual orientation and gender expression.

Sakia Gunn - May 11, 2003 - Newark, New Jersey: Sakia Gunn, a 15-year-old lesbian, was fatally stabbed in a hate crime while waiting for a bus with friends. Her death highlighted the vulnerability of LGBTQ youth of color to violence.

Jamey Rodemeyer - September 18, 2011 - Buffalo, New York: Jamey Rodemeyer, a 14-year-old bisexual boy, died by suicide after experiencing relentless bullying and harassment because of his sexual orientation. His death sparked national conversations about the impact of bullying on LGBTQ youth.

Nex Benedict - February 8, 2024 - Owassa, Oklahoma: Nex Benedict, a 16-year-old nonbinary student, died a day after enduring a physical assault with students in a school bathroom.
